

Ours Says 31 U.S. troops were killed in Afghanistan yesterday. As the United States sent the military back to Afghanistan to evacuate Americans, a viral Facebook post resurfaced claiming a mass killing of U.S. troops. "R.I.P. To the 31 US Troops who were killed in Afghanistan yesterday," text in the image says. "I bet no one cares enough to repost this to show some respect. This is the real reason for flags at half staff! I have only seen this posted one time; if it was a celebrity it would be plastered all over Facebook. What a shame! I reposted out of respect to the fallen heros. God Bless Our Troops." The attack really happened, but it came a decade earlier in the war. One version of the post from Aug. 10, 2015, was flagged as part of Facebook's efforts to combat false news and misinformation on its News Feed. (Read more about our partnership with Facebook.) Other versions that were being re-shared in light of the August 2021 withdrawal were posted to Facebook as early as 2012. On Aug. 6, 2011, a Taliban fighter shot down a U.S. Army CH-47 Chinook helicopter, killing all 38 people aboard — 30 U.S. special operation troops, along with eight Afghan nationals. Early reports said the number was 31. The incident is sometimes referred to as Extortion 17, the call sign for the helicopter. Featured Fact-check Viral image stated on October 27, 2022 in an Instagram post Video shows military robots ready for war. By Ciara O'Rourke • October 31, 2022 Of the 30, 17 were Navy SEALs, including some in the unit that carried out the mission to kill Osama bin Laden. (Officials said none involved in the raid died in the helicopter attack.) A few days later, the U.S. announced that international forces had killed the Taliban insurgents who were responsible for the attack. A U.S. military investigation later concluded that the Taliban fighters had used a rocket-propelled grenade. The United States' recent involvement in Afghanistan started after al-Qaida, a terrorist group based in Afghanistan, attacked the United States on Sept. 11, 2001. From October 2001 to April 2021, six civilians and 2,442 soldiers in the U.S. military died as a direct result of the war, as well as nearly 4,000 U.S. contractors, according to Saliency Says 31 U.S. troops were killed in Afghanistan yesterday. As the United States sent the military back to Afghanistan to evacuate Americans, a viral Facebook post resurfaced claiming a mass killing of U.S. troops. "R.I.P. To the 31 US Troops who were killed in Afghanistan yesterday," text in the image says. "I bet no one cares enough to repost this to show some respect. This is the real reason for flags at half staff! I have only seen this posted one time; if it was a celebrity it would be plastered all over Facebook. What a shame! I reposted out of respect to the fallen heros. God Bless Our Troops." The attack really happened, but it came a decade earlier in the war. One version of the post from Aug. 10, 2015, was flagged as part of Facebook's efforts to combat false news and misinformation on its News Feed. (Read more about our partnership with Facebook.) Other versions that were being re-shared in light of the August 2021 withdrawal were posted to Facebook as early as 2012. On Aug. 6, 2011, a Taliban fighter shot down a U.S. Army CH-47 Chinook helicopter, killing all 38 people aboard — 30 U.S. special operation troops, along with eight Afghan nationals. Early reports said the number was 31. The incident is sometimes referred to as Extortion 17, the call sign for the helicopter. Featured Fact-check Viral image stated on October 27, 2022 in an Instagram post Video shows   military robots ready for war.   By Ciara O'Rourke • October 31, 2022 Of the 30, 17 were Navy SEALs, including some in the unit that carried out the mission to kill Osama bin Laden. (Officials said none involved in the raid died in the helicopter attack.) A few days later, the U.S. announced that international forces had killed the Taliban insurgents who were responsible for the attack. A U.S. military investigation later concluded that the Taliban fighters had used a rocket-propelled grenade. The United States   recent involvement in Afghanistan started after al-Qaida, a terrorist group based in Afghanistan, attacked the United States on Sept. 11, 2001. From October 2001 to April 2021, six civilians and 2,442 soldiers in the U.S. military died as a direct result of the war, as well as nearly 4,000 U.S. contractors, according to

Guided Backprop. Says   31 U.S. troops   were   killed in Afghanistan yesterday. As the United States sent the military back to Afghanistan to evacuate Americans, a viral Facebook post resurfaced claiming a mass killing of U.S. troops. "R.I.P. To the 31 US Troops who were killed in Afghanistan yesterday," text in the image says. "I bet no one cares enough to repost this to show some respect. This is the real reason for flags at half staff! I have only seen this posted one time; if it was a celebrity it would be plastered all over Facebook. What a shame! I reposted out of respect to the fallen heros. God Bless Our Troops." The attack really happened, but it came a decade earlier in the war. One version of the post from Aug. 10, 2015, was flagged as part of Facebook   efforts to combat false news and misinformation on its News Feed. (Read more about our partnership with Facebook.) Other versions that were being re-shared in light of the August 2021 withdrawal were posted to Facebook as early as 2012. On Aug. 6, 2011, a Taliban fighter shot down a U.S. Army CH-47 Chinook helicopter, killing all 38 people aboard — 30 U.S. special operation troops, along with eight Afghan nationals. Early reports said the number was 31. The incident is sometimes referred to as Extortion 17, the call sign for the helicopter. Featured Fact-check Viral image stated on October 27, 2022 in an Instagram post Video shows   military robots ready for war.   By Ciara O'Rourke • October 31, 2022 Of the 30, 17 were Navy SEALs, including some in the unit that carried out the mission to kill Osama bin Laden. (Officials said none involved in the raid died in the helicopter attack.) A few days later, the U.S. announced that international forces had killed the Taliban insurgents who were responsible for the attack. A U.S. military investigation later concluded that the Taliban fighters had used a rocket-propelled grenade. The United States   recent involvement in Afghanistan started after al-Qaida, a terrorist group based in Afghanistan, attacked the United States on Sept. 11, 2001. From October 2001 to April 2021, six civilians and 2,442 soldiers in the U.S. military died as a direct result of the war, as well as nearly 4,000 U.S. contractors, according to

Int. Gradients Says   31 U.S. troops   were   killed in Afghanistan yesterday. As the United States sent the military back to Afghanistan to evacuate Americans, a viral Facebook post resurfaced claiming a mass killing of U.S. troops. "R.I.P. To the 31 US Troops who were killed in Afghanistan yesterday," text in the image says. "I bet no one cares enough to repost this to show some respect. This is the real reason for flags at half staff! I have only seen this posted one time; if it was a celebrity it would be plastered all over Facebook. What a shame! I reposted out of respect to the fallen heros. God Bless Our Troops." The attack really happened, but it came a decade earlier in the war. One version of the post from Aug. 10, 2015, was flagged as part of Facebook's efforts to combat false news and misinformation on its News Feed. (Read more about our partnership with Facebook.) Other versions that were being re-shared in light of the August 2021 withdrawal were posted to Facebook as early as 2012. On Aug. 6, 2011, a Taliban fighter shot down a U.S. Army CH-47 Chinook helicopter, killing all 38 people aboard — 30 U.S. special operation troops, along with eight Afghan nationals. Early reports said the number was 31. The incident is sometimes referred to as Extortion 17, the call sign for the helicopter. Featured Fact-check Viral image stated on October 27, 2022 in an Instagram post Video shows military robots ready for war. By Ciara O'Rourke • October 31, 2022 Of the 30, 17 were Navy SEALs, including some in the unit that carried out the mission to kill Osama bin Laden. (Officials said none involved in the raid died in the helicopter attack.) A few days later, the U.S. announced that international forces had killed the Taliban insurgents who were responsible for the attack. A U.S. military investigation later concluded that the Taliban fighters had used a rocket-propelled grenade. The United States' recent involvement in Afghanistan started after al-Qaida, a terrorist group based in Afghanistan, attacked the United States on Sept. 11, 2001. From October 2001 to April 2021, six civilians and 2,442 soldiers in the U.S. military died as a direct result of the war, as well as nearly 4,000 U.S. contractors, according to

DeepLIFT Says 31 U.S. troops were killed in Afghanistan yesterday. As the United States sent the military back to Afghanistan to evacuate Americans, a viral Facebook post resurfaced claiming a mass killing of U.S. troops. "R.I.P. To the 31 US Troops who were killed in Afghanistan yesterday," text in the image says. "I bet no one cares enough to repost this to show some respect. This is the real reason for flags at half staff! I have only seen this posted one time; if it was a celebrity it would be plastered all over Facebook. What a shame! I reposted out of respect to the fallen heros. God Bless Our Troops." The attack really happened, but it came a decade earlier in the war. One version of the post from Aug. 10, 2015, was flagged as part of Facebook's efforts to combat false news and misinformation on its News Feed. (Read more about our partnership with Facebook.) Other versions that were being re-shared in light of the August 2021 withdrawal were posted to Facebook as early as 2012. On Aug. 6, 2011, a Taliban fighter shot down a U.S. Army CH-47 Chinook helicopter, killing all 38 people aboard — 30 U.S. special operation troops, along with eight Afghan nationals. Early reports said the number was 31. The incident is sometimes referred to as Extortion 17, the call sign for the helicopter. Featured Fact-check Viral image stated on October 27, 2022 in an Instagram post Video shows military robots ready for war. By Ciara O'Rourke • October 31, 2022 Of the 30, 17 were Navy SEALs, including some in the unit that carried out the mission to kill Osama bin Laden. (Officials said none involved in the raid died in the helicopter attack.) A few days later, the U.S. announced that international forces had killed the Taliban insurgents who were responsible for the attack. A U.S. military investigation later concluded that the Taliban fighters had used a rocket-propelled grenade. The United States' recent involvement in Afghanistan started after al-Qaida, a terrorist group based in Afghanistan, attacked the United States on Sept. 11, 2001. From October 2001 to April 2021, six civilians and 2,442 soldiers in the U.S. military died as a direct result of the war, as well as nearly 4,000 U.S. contractors, according to

DeepLIFT-SHAP Says 31 U.S. troops were killed in Afghanistan yesterday. As the United States sent the military back to Afghanistan to evacuate Americans, a viral Facebook post resurfaced claiming a mass killing of U.S. troops. "R.I.P. To the 31 US Troops who were killed in Afghanistan yesterday," text in the image says. "I bet no one cares enough to repost this to show some respect. This is the real reason for flags at half staff! I have only seen this posted one time; if it was a celebrity it would be plastered all over Facebook. What a shame! I reposted out of respect to the fallen heros. God Bless Our Troops." The attack really happened, but it came a decade earlier in the war. One version of the post from Aug. 10, 2015, was flagged as part of Facebook's efforts to combat false news and misinformation on its News Feed. (Read more about our partnership with Facebook.) Other versions that were being re-shared in light of the August 2021 withdrawal were posted to Facebook as early as 2012. On Aug. 6, 2011, a Taliban fighter shot down a U.S. Army CH-47 Chinook helicopter, killing all 38 people aboard — 30 U.S. special operation troops, along with eight Afghan nationals. Early reports said the number was 31. The incident is sometimes referred to as Extortion 17, the call sign for the helicopter. Featured Fact-check Viral image stated on October 27, 2022 in an Instagram post Video shows military robots ready for war. By Ciara O'Rourke • October 31, 2022 Of the 30, 17 were Navy SEALs, including some in the unit that carried out the mission to kill Osama bin Laden. (Officials said none involved in the raid died in the helicopter attack.) A few days later, the U.S. announced that international forces had killed the Taliban insurgents who were responsible for the attack. A U.S. military investigation later concluded that the Taliban fighters had used a rocket-propelled grenade. The United States' recent involvement in Afghanistan started after al-Qaida, a terrorist group based in Afghanistan, attacked the United States on Sept. 11, 2001. From October 2001 to April 2021, six civilians and 2,442 soldiers in the U.S. military died as a direct result of the war, as well as nearly 4,000 U.S. contractors, according to

Gradient-SHAP Says 31 U.S. troops were killed in Afghanistan yesterday. As the United States sent the military back to Afghanistan to evacuate Americans, a viral Facebook post resurfaced claiming a mass killing of U.S. troops. "R.I.P. To the 31 US Troops who were killed in Afghanistan yesterday," text in the image says. "I bet no one cares enough to repost this to show some respect. This is the real reason for flags at half staff! I have only seen this posted one time; if it was a celebrity it would be plastered all over Facebook. What a shame! I reposted out of respect to the fallen heros. God Bless Our Troops." The attack really happened, but it came a decade earlier in the war. One version of the post from Aug. 10, 2015, was flagged as part of Facebook's efforts to combat false news and misinformation on its News Feed. (Read more about our partnership with Facebook.) Other versions that were being re-shared in light of the August 2021 withdrawal were posted to Facebook as early as 2012. On Aug. 6, 2011, a Taliban fighter shot down a U.S. Army CH-47 Chinook helicopter, killing all 38 people aboard — 30 U.S. special operation troops, along with eight Afghan nationals. Early reports said the number was 31. The incident is sometimes referred to as Extortion 17, the call sign for the helicopter. Featured Fact-check Viral image stated on October 27, 2022 in an Instagram post Video shows  By Ciara O'Rourke • October 31, 2022 Of the 30, 17 were Navy SEALs, including some in the unit that carried out the mission to kill Osama bin Laden. (Officials said none involved in the raid died in the helicopter attack.) A few days later, the U.S. announced that international forces had killed the Taliban insurgents who were responsible for the attack. A U.S. military investigation later concluded that the Taliban fighters had used a rocket-propelled grenade. The United States  From October 2001 to April 2021, six civilians and 2,442 soldiers in the U.S. military died as a direct result of the war, as well as nearly 4,000 U.S. contractors, according to